Faced with water scarcity challenges and a fast-growing population, Egypt is working on an ambitious programme of solar-powered desalination plants, which aims to transform the water landscape in the country through substantial investments in the sector. A significant role is foreseen for the private sector, in an initiative, which would make use of Egypt's abundant solar resources. Egypt is also seeking to mobilise opportunities in green logistics, backing innovation in a fast-developing sector driven by private sector investment and where there is ample scope for green investments in energy efficiency, clean vehicles and efficient business models. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• HE Yehia Zaki, Chairman, Suez Canal Economic Zone, Egypt</li> <li>• Ayman Soliman, CEO, Sovereign Fund of Egypt</li> <li>• Ahmed El Sewedy, President &amp; CEO, Elsewedy Electric</li> <li>• Holger Rothenbusch, Managing Director &amp; Head of Infrastructure and Climate, British International Investment</li> <li>• Dalia Wahba, Deputy CEO, Hassan Allam Utilities</li> </ul> EBRD Moderator: Aida Sitdikova, EBRD, Director &amp; Head of Energy Eurasia MEA
